DEATH PREFERRED.

An American Resident of the Hawaiian Islands

SAYS THE WHITE PEOPLE OVER THERE

Would Rather Be Shot Down by U. States Marines

Than Suffer Queen Liliuokalani to Ascend the Throne—The American Government Must Put Her There by Force—She Has no Forces—News Waited With Great Anxiety.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 25.—Ex-State Senator Gillman has received from a prominent government official in Honolulu a letter in which the writer says: "The people await with anxiety Minister Willis' disclosures. The provisional government is in a position to stand with much tenacity for its rights. People here will not tolerate the restoration of the monarchy upon any terms. We shall resist any attempt at restoration, and many of us would rather be shot down in the streets by our own countrymen (the United States marines) than submit to any such event. The strong impression here is that Mr. Blount's report is misrepresenting us. It is desirable that we should learn as soon as possible what is to be done as the effect of waiting is paralyzing all business. If the queen be restored by force it would have to be done wholly by the United States, as the queen has no army. The United States would have to maintain the queen on her throne if she were placed there."

Suffering Seamen.

London, Nov. 25.—The British bark Merlin, Captain Bateman, from Mauritius for Cork, was spoken on November 22nd, when 22 miles from the Lizard. She reported several of the crew were dead and the remainder in great distress. During the recent hurricane a steamer was seen to founder on the Bay of Biscay.

A Regretted Death.

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 25.—One of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Cornwall met his death very suddenly on Monday. Michael Warner, aged 78, was shingling a house near Milleroches, when he slipped and fell to the ground, sustaining injuries from which he died fifteen minutes later. Last winter Warner had a leg broken and sustained other injuries by being struck by a falling tree while at work in the woods.

Respected Though a Criminal.

Montreal, Nov. 25.—At a meeting of the directors of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation company this morning, a letter was read from N. K. Connolly tendering his resignation as president of the company. The board, out of respect for Connolly, refused to accept the proffered resignation.

Sargent's Opinion.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 25.—Grand Master Sargent, of the Firemen's Association, left to-night for St. Paul, Minn., to take up the question of a schedule for the Chicago & N. W. R.R. He said before leaving: "I find it impossible to go to Buffalo, as requested by the firemen, to take charge of the strike on the Lehigh road. The strikers' interests, however, on that road are in good hands. All I can add to whatever I have said about this strike is that the men are simply contending that labor organizations shall be recognized, and with that as the issue I believe they deserve to win."

Heading for Canada.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 25.—Harry Hill, who is known as the "Society" forger, and whose use of the name of the wife of President Porter of the Merchants' Bank led to his arrest and caused a great sensation throughout the south, was quietly released on bonds yesterday afternoon and quickly got out of town. While the proceedings were regular, there was much secrecy about them. Hill has said since his arrest that he used Mrs. Porter's name on notes with her full knowledge, and that she personally endorsed many of the notes. An effort will be made by the holders of notes to catch and have him brought back. His ultimate destination is believed to be Canada.

Unaware of the Tragedy.

Davisville, Cal., Nov. 25.—Miss Lydia Dodge was very low last night, but rallied this morning, and is now resting quietly. She is still in ignorance of the murder of Eaton and the death of her brother.

SPANISH AMERICA.

Senator Teller Studying Mexican Silver —Nicaragua Canal.

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 25.—The representatives of British syndicates have had another interview with the president, but he refuses for the present to consider any overtures from them respecting the canal. He has told them repeatedly the American company has the first right, and it must first be seen whether they can carry out their contract before any proposals can be entertained.

Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, Nov. 25.—Unconfirmed reports of a battle near Concepcion are in circulation. Federal officers assert that their troops came on the revolutionists, who fled to the mountains. The rebel sympathizers say they have defeated the government forces. All roads are picketed and couriers are not allowed to pass either way, hence rumors can not be verified in less than 48 hours.

San Jose, Guatemala, Nov. 25.—The man calling himself Stone, but who is believed to be Menage, the Minneapolis embezzler, has given the American sleuth hounds the slip, having got safely across into Honduras. The men who conducted him across have returned here, but none of them will talk about the matter. One of them has since sold some fine clothes marked "L. V. M." Mystery surrounds the entire affair.

CONDEMNED AS UNSAFE.

Dominion Museum Closed to Visitors for a While.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The Dominion Geological society's buildings, Sussex street, this city, have been considered unsafe, and the museum has been closed to the public. The floors are said to have sunk about six inches. It is a stone building situated upon marshy ground. Members of the survey staff are still at work in the buildings, which will require to be atended to at once. There are 180 tons of specimens of minerals upon one flat. The speaker was here to-day arranging the estimates for the next session of parliament, which is expected to meet on January 25th.

BRAZIL'S LITTLE WAR.

The Destroyer to be Towed South—The Lost Javary.

New York, Nov. 25.—The seagoing tug Ocean King has been bought by the Brazilian government to tow the Destroyer to Brazil. She belonged to L. Luckenbach and is one of the most powerful tugs in New York waters. She was built in Philadelphia in 1884, is 100 feet long, 21 feet beam, 12 feet 5 inches draught, and 200 tons burthen. She will probably carry eight torpedoes for the Destroyer, and it is possible she may be armed with rapid-firing guns. It is proposed she shall tow the Destroyer to St. Thomas, take on coal and then proceed to Brazil.

Montevideo, Nov. 25.—Mello's ill-fated warship, the Javary, which was sunk by the guns of Fort San Juan in Rio harbor, is considered a total loss. Nothing can be done in the way of raising her as long as the conflict lasts, and it is doubtful if she could be raised from the depths where she now lies by any appliances available here, even in times peace.

Lynching Would be Excusable.

Glassboro, N. J., Nov. 25.—Samuel Jones, a glass-blower, yesterday became angry at his boy assistant, and filling a blow pipe with molten glass wound strands of the hot composition about the lad's wrists and hands. The boy screamed for mercy, but Jones showed none. finally the victim fell fainting. Jones continued pouring out the molten glass until the blow pipe was exhausted. The cooling glass had tightly bound the boy's hands and wrists together. When the glass was broken the flesh fell away with it. It is feared the boy will die. Jones is under arrest. He has been noted for his dirty temper. Other blowers who know from handling it what terrible burns are caused by molten glass, are threatening to lynch Jones.

World's Fair Profits.

Chicago, Ills., Nov. 25.—The profits of exhibitors at the World's Fair have surpassed those of all previous exhibitions. The final count has been made by the concessionaires with the department of collections this week. Over $10,000,000 worth of goods have been sold by exhibitors of the eight nations best represented. Italy leads the van. During the six months of the exposition concessionaires in the Italian sections of the various departments took in $2,500,000 for carvings, porcelains, marbles and bronzes. Germany is second in amount of her sales, $1,500,000. France, England, Australia are rated alike in the aggregate of their sales at $1,000,000 each, but French and English sales are likely to exceed this amount considerably. The Russian and Spanish exhibits were not in so great a measure commercial as those of Italy, France, England and Japan, but nevertheless their sales reached large and unexpected figures. Both Russia and Spain are down as having transacted business that reached the amount of $750,000.

Heirs of Old Tippecanoe.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 25.—In the common pleas court yesterday afternoon suit in foreclosure was entered against Betsy Eaton, sister of ex-President Harrison, by Elizabeth S. Fisk, for ten acres of land at the Eaton homestead at North Bend, Ohio. The suit is on a note for $14,784 dated Oct. 10th, 1879. At his death "Old Tippecanoe" Harrison left about 2,700 acres of land in one tract to his heirs. This ten acres is the last in the possession of the family.

Died of Football.

Wooster, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Robt. Christie, of Delmonte, Pa., a member of the freshmen class of the University of Wooster, died last evening from injuries received by a kick in the stomach and over-exertion in playing football last Saturday.

The New York Breaking Up.

San Francisco, Nov. 25.—The stranded Pacific Mail steamer City of New York is going to pieces this morning. There is a heavy swell and if it continues there will not be a vestige of the vessel left. Considerable wrecking machinery will also be lost.

Captain Whitelaw's pumps and all his wrecking gear, Captain Griffiths' big wrecking pump, the finest of the kind on the coast, and all the lumber and tools sent down by the Pacific Mail company, have gone, or will go down with the wreck. These tools will swell the total loss by another $5000.

The Olympia's Accident.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Nothing has been heard at the navy department about the unsuccessful attempt to run the new gunboat Olympia on her official trial yesterday.

San Francisco, Nov. 25.—A statement was telegraphed east this morning that the gunboat was making 22.2 knots when a pump bolt broke. The engineers were pleased, for the engines of the Olympia are counterparts of those of the gunboat Columbia.

MOROCCO'S RULER

Muley Araaf Assures the Spaniards His Brother

SULTAN MULEY HASSAN IS FRIENDLY

He Will do His Utmost to Prevent More Trouble

And Recognizes Spain's Right to Build Forts in Moroccan Territory—He Will Chastise the Rifians—Fire To-Day at Friedrichsruhe—Bismarck Still Active.

Madrid, Nov. 25.—Queen Regent Cristina presided at the cabinet council held last night. It was stated at the council that Muley Araaf, the Sultan's brother and envoy to Gen. Macias, the Spanish commander at Melilla, had assured Gen. Macias of the Sultan's unaltered friendship for Spain and that he would do his utmost to prevent a rupture. Muley Araaf declared the Sultan recognized the right of Spain to erect forts in her own territory in Morocco and that he proposed to chastise the rebels.

Fire at Friedrichsruhe

Berlin, Nov. 25.—Fire caused by a defective heating apparatus occurred today at Prince Bismarck's home in Friedrichsruhe. The prince, assisted by his servants, extinguished the fire before the brigade arrived. The damage was slight.

Welsh Tinplate Workers.

London, Nov. 25.—At a demonstration yesterday of tinplate workers at Maesteg, Wales, Richard Lewis, the president of the district association, said the workmen had entered upon a period of trouble and distress, when the wage earners would suffer much through no fault of their own. He believed that the remedy for the poverty caused by trade depression was combination. There were, he said, no hopeful signs for their trade in America just now, as a result of prospective tariff reduction, and he trusted that as a result there would be a long period of prosperity before them. These remarks were greeted with loud applause.

Conductor Scott Guilty.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 25.—Judge Henry this morning rendered a verdict in the Scott manslaughter examination case, holding Scott for the circuit court for trial. He finds Scott was careless and negligent in allowing his train to pass the place of meeting.

Burst the Boiler.

Geneva, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Lehigh engine No. 604 was wrecked last night at North Proctor by the explosion of the boiler. The conductor and fireman were killed and the engineer fatally injured. The crew were all new men.

Teller Studying Silver.

City of Mexico, Nov. 25.—Senator Teller arrived on Thursday evening on a tour of Mexico for the purpose of making a study of the silver question from the standpoint of a country where its coinage full and free prevails. An aide-de-camp of President Diaz was at the station to conduct the senator and party to a hotel. During his stay in Mexico he will meet the leading financiers of the country and see what can be done in the way of mutual bi-metallism. The senator in an interview said President Cleveland was a disappointment to the silver people, the gold people and the tariff reformers.

Patriot Hale's Statue.

New York, Nov. 25.—The statue of Nathan Hale was unveiled to-day before an immense assemblage near the spot where Hale declared it was his sole regret he had only one life to give for his country. Five bronze memorial tablets relating to revolutionary times were unveiled at the same time in different parts of the city. The societies which participated in the ceremonies were headed by a platoon of police, several batteries of United States artillery, United States infantry, and detachments of United States marines from the gunboats Machias, New York and Miantonomoh. The procession started from France's tavern, corner of Broad and Pearl streets, marched up Broad to Broadway, thence to the city hall park, where half an hour later the statue was unveiled amidst cheers and the firing of guns by the Governor's Island light battery stationed near the statue. The statue represents Hale, bound hand and foot, in the attitude in which he uttered the words that made his name famous. Rev. Everett Hale, great grand nephew of the "martyr," delivered the oration.

Suicide in Jail.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 25.—E. Brighton, aged 30, one of the indicted Portland opium smuggling gang, convicted yesterday and sentenced to six moths' imprisonment in the state penitentiary for smuggling 71 tins of opium, committed suicide in the county jail at 7 this morning, by cutting his throat with a razor. He left a note reading as follows: "To the coroner—I have taken my life, do not let them cut up my body." Brighton's home and family are unknown but it is believed he is from Victoria, B. C.

Killed by the Empire Express.

New York, Nov. 25.—William H. Camp, a member of Columbia College football team and youngest son of Hugh N. Camp, the millionaire real estate dealer, was struck and instantly killed by the southbound empire express of the New York Central railway last evening as he alighted from a train at Morris Heights station, where the family live. He was thrown 20 feet, his skull crushed in on the left side, and his jaw and nose broken.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

The Unemployed — Ocean Derelict — Britain's Naval Strength.

London, Nov. 24.—In the house of commons to-day Right Hon. Henry Fowler, secretary of the local government board, said he declined to authorize boards of guardians to provide work for the unemployed. James Keir Hardie moved the adjournment of the house with a view to discussing the condition of the unemployed. The motion was rejected by a vote of 412 to 44. Mr. Hardie remarked that he hoped the unemployed would take matters into their own hands.

In reply to a question propounded by Lieut.-General Sir George Chesney, Conservative member for Oxford, Mr. Gladstone said that there was no reason to fear that the naval strength of the country would not be kept at the proper standard.

Right Hon. John Morley, secretary for Ireland, had to-day recovered sufficiently from his recent indisposition to allow of his reappearance in the house. His illness, however, had left its mark upon him and he looked shaken.

Wm. Johnson, Conservative member four South Belfast, asked if the government knew that 2,000 Armenians were confined in Turkish prisons.

Sir Edward Grey, parliamentary secretary of the foreign office, said in reply that the government did not know the number of Armenians in confinement in Turkey. He added that without strong evidence as to the innocence of the prisoners it would be impossible for him to interfere in their behalf.

In response to a question on the subject, Mr. Gladstone said that the government had no present intention of providing a residence in Ireland for the Duke of York.

The matter of derelict vessels that has several times been brought up in the house, evoked another question to-day. Sir U. Kay Shuttleworth, secretary to the admiralty, in reply stated that the government did not intend to send a warship to destroy the abandoned vessels floating around in the ocean. No record, he added, of a ship striking a derelict could be found by the admiralty.

Michael McCarthy retorted, "maybe because none was left to tell the tale!"

American Money Market.

New York, Nov. 24.—The glut of money, the increased demand for first-class railway bonds, a reduction in sterling exchange, and the purchases of stock for London account produced a better condition of affairs at the stock exchange to-day. Some of the shrewdest manipulators on the street discovered early in the week that the market had been heavily over sold, and that a latent short interest existed that could be forced to cover. Another contingent of operators were advising caution because of the tariff revision and the lack of knowledge as to the result of the deliberations of the ways and means committee. The chronic "bears" were adding to their burdens, while the "bulls" were gradually getting in position to bring up prices sharply. This happened to-day, and the "shorts" were badly punished. There is extraordinary ease in money, and already investors are putting their surplus funds into gilt edged securities. As the supply is limited, buyers are forced to pick up the second rate mortgages, which are reasonably sure of paying their interest charges. As a rule stocks opened higher. Subsequently American sugar fell 1 1-8 to 93 3-4, and Generaly Electric 1 1-4 to 33 1-2. Sugar was heavy on statements from Washington that the ways and means committee would recommend certain revision of the tariff that would affect the carrying capacity of the concern. General Electric weakened on a rumor via Boston that the company would pass into the hands of a receiver. This was promptly and emphatically denied by President Coffin. The general market was strong from start to finish. Western Union moved up to 90 1-2, and the stock was strengthened by an unfounded report that the company had obtained control of the Postal Telegraph Co. Closing bids: Atchison, 20 1-8; Burlington & Quincy, 81 7-8; Canada Southern, 51 1-2; Canadian Pacific, 73; Central Pacific, 109; Chicago, Columbus & Cincinnati, 37; Delaware & Lackawanna, 168; Erie, 15 1-8; Wells Fargo Express, 120; Great Northern preferred, 18; Lake Shore, 129 5-8; Louisville & Nashville, 69 1-8; Missouri Pacific, 20; New York Central, 103; New England, 31; North American, 43 1-4; Northern Pacific, 6 5-8; Northern Pacific preferred, 22 1-2; Northwestern, 108; Oregon Navigation, 27; Oregon Improvement, 11 3-8; Pacific Mail, 17 1-2; Reading, 21 1-2; Rock Island, 60 3-4; Southern Pacific, 18 5-8; St. Paul, 41 1-2; Texas Pacific, 8; Union Pacific, 19 1-2; Western Union, 90 3-8; bar silver, 70c. per ounce; money on call, 1 to 2; foreign exchange, sterling, 4.84 1-2 for 60 days, 4.87 on demand. Bonds—Union Pacific firsts of 1896, 104 1-8; Central Pacific first, 1895, 108 3-8.

Government Clerks Use Them.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—One striking feature of the Dominion civil servants is their esprit du corps. The actions of one member are sure to find favor in the eyes of all the others. This is strikingly illustrated by an incident that occurred recently. A clerk in one of the departments found himself the subject of kidney disorder. He began using Dodd's Kidney Pills and in a short time was completely cured. He had told some of his departmental confreres, and they watched his case closely. After he was cured the story ran around the government buildings like a trolley car, and to-day there are a great many of the clerks, who happen to have diseased kidneys, using this remedy.

GENERAL DISPATCHES.

News a Brief From Various Parts of the World.

London, Nov. 24.—To-day at the Burnhope colliery, Durham, while a number of miners were being hoisted to the surface the rope by which the cage is lifted broke and the men fell to the bottom of the shaft. Four were instantly killed.

Glasgow, Nov. 24.—Most of the Scotch coal miners are idle in consequence of the strike growing out of the masters' refusal to increase wages a shilling a day. A meeting of the strikers was held here to-day and it was decided to continue the strike. The men expressed themselves as willing to agree to the appointment of a board of conciliation to settle the differences between them and the mine owners.

London, Nov. 24.—The Madrid correspondent of the Central News telegraphs: "Muley Araaf appealed to Gen. Macia to grant an indefinite truce, that a courier might have time to carry news of the Spanish terms to Fez, and that meantime Melilla should be open to native trade. General Macia refused to entertain the proposals. He declared that unless Spain's terms were accepted he would resume shelling the Riff positions. Nevertheless, he eventually said he would submit Muley's request to the Spanish government and await its reply before recpening fire.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—Emperor William was at the naval barracks in Kiel yesterday when the naval recruits were sworn in for service. He said to them: "Having sworn allegiance to the colors, you are bound to me by your oath. Be obedient to your superiors. In all your voyages to foreign countries take care that by your good conduct you do honor to our flag in the eyes of all nations. My eye watches you all. Those who fulfil their duties shall be rewarded."

London, Nov. 24.—Delegates representing one hundred thousand workmen waited on Lord Salisbury to-day and urged that he should introduce in the house of lords a clause to be added to the employers' liability bill permitting contracting out. (The bill passed its third reading in the house of commons last night without a division.) Lord Salisbury informed the deputation that the government made a general mistake in refusing to concede such a clause as the one the workingmen demanded. The bill was sure to create ill feeling between masters and men. He promised to give favorable consideration to the proposal that a clause be inserted when the bill reaches the house of lords.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 24.—The ironclad Javary, rebel ship, carrying their heaviest artillery, was sunk this afternoon in the port by the loyal fort San Juan. The northern column of the army, which operates in Santa Catarina under command of General Argollo, destroyed the rebel forces, which lost their gun carriages, munitions and horses, leaving many dead and wounded.

Paris, Nov. 24.—A large meeting of socialists held here this evening censured the government declaration of policy as reactionary and based on a false conception of the country's needs. The police in Orleans have seized many placards which bear the signatures of foreign anarchists now in London. The placards eulogized the Barcelona anarchists and exhort anarchists to continue using dynamite.

American News.

Bangor, Me., Nov. 25.—Nearly all of the toothpick mills of this state, which have been shut down for several months, will resume operations this week and a big winter's business is expected. The supply of toothpicks held by the wholesale houses throughout the country has reached hardpan, and as a result the orders received during the last two weeks have made a larger aggregate than for the previous four months.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25.—Responding to the address issued last week by Cardinal Gibbons the clergy and laity of this diocese are making efforts to secure a fund towards the cost of the house in Washington for Apostolic Delegate Satolli that shall exceed the contributions of any archdiocese in the country for this purpose. In other words they seek to make the offering of the jurisdiction of the cardinal the "banner" fund, which will entitle it to go at the head of the list. The collection is to be taken up two weeks from next Sunday, and at every mass as well as vespers on the day after to-morrow the cardinal's address will be read to the congregation.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 24.—It is given out as a result of pointed representations from one of the largest breweries in the city the engineers and conductors recently discharged by one of the roads entering Milwaukee for being seen in or about saloons will be reinstated in their positions with a warning that hereafter they must give such places a wide berth. It is said that the influence used by the breweries was in the nature of a threat to transfer its freight business, representing several hundred thousand dollars annually, to a competing line. The employees involved had no explanations or denials to offer, in view of the fact that they were detected by kodak fiends who secured unimpeachable evidence against them by means of vest button kodaks.

Prendergast's Trial

Chicago, Nov. 24.—It has not yet been decided whether application for a change of venue will be made when Patrick Prendergast, the assassin of Mayor Harrison, is arraigned for trial next Monday, although voluminous papers to that end have been prepared, the ground advanced being that public sentiment is such in Cook County as to make it impossible to find an unprejudiced panel. R. A. Wade and Robert Essex, the latter of St. Joseph, Mo., have been working night and day preparing their case. They have been hampered in their efforts to bring witnesses from other points who can testify as to Prendergast's mental condition in his boyhood days, for lack of funds, both the mother and brother of the assassin being very poor. It is understood that, although outside of the identification of the servant girl at the Harrison homestead there is no absolute evidence against Prendergast except his own confession, no effort will be made to argue the case on that line, but insanity and irresponsibility will be the only plea.

AFFAIRS IN SAMOA.

British Interest Likely to Succeed German in the Islands.

San Francisco, Nov. 24.—If the news received by the steamship Alameda be correct, there is likely to be a change in the controlling interest of the Samoan islands within a short time, and the English will succeed Germany in supremacy there. The Samoan Herald states that a syndicate has been organized in Australia with Sir Robert Stout at its head, whose intention is to purchase the plantations and other property of the Deutsche Handels and Plantagens Gesellschaft in Samoa. Regarding the proposed purchase the Herald says: "It will be in the recollection of many that less than 10 years ago a sale to the New Zealand government was on the eve of being completed, but it was frustrated by the late Theodore Weber promising the company to demand a sum enormously in excess of the amount offered by New Zealand, and arousing the feelings of international jealousy, by stating that the proposed purchase was of a political nature, the ulterior object in view being the annexation of the islands to New Zealand.

"Probably the shareholders have more than once since then bitterly regretted that the New Zealanders' offer was not accepted, for the balance sheets of the company year after year have shown a heavy loss. Should the present rumor be well founded and the sale actually take place the event will be of the very greatest importance to Samoa. The estate of the German firm practically constitutes the entire German interest in the country. The enormous capital which has been expended in the acquisition and development of that estate and been carried on by Goddefroi and his successors, really entitled Germany to claim a preponderating influence in the islands.

"Various circumstances have contributed to limit and restrain that influence, but even now the material commercial interests of Germany in Samoa is greater than British and American interests combined. However, if the firm which has made and controlled so much Samoan history should withdraw and its place be taken by an English or colonial company or syndicate, English interests and influence would so enormously increase as to dwarf into utter insignificance all others, and there is little doubt that such an acquisition would bring annexation within a measurable distance. It is only for such material interest in Samoa as the property which she actually owns in the country which has caused Germany to take so large a share in Samoa's politics and history. To her the islands are of no strategical importance. The disposal of the property, therefore, means the practical extinguishment of German interests, and we have no doubt that when these commercial interests disappear, as they would on the property being acquired by an English company, the official circles in Berlin would sigh a great sigh of relief at such a happy solution for Germany of the troublesome Samoan difficulty."

The fall of the year is a trying season for elderly people. The many cheerless, dark, dismal days act depressingly, not to say injuriously, on both old and young. Now is the time to re-inforce the vital energies with Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood medicines.

Carlin's Lost Son.

Missoula, Mont., Nov. 25.—The following message was received here from Gen. Carlin last evening by Major Mickibben, commandant at Fort Missoula: "Vancouver Barracks, Wash.: "What are they doing at Missoula for the lost party? $2,000 more is offered for the safe delivery of my son at Missoula. Carlin." This raises the reward to $2,250. The government relief party, which started about two weeks ago from Fort Missoula, under command of Captain Andrews, returned to the post to-day, having found it impossible to travel with animals in the Clear Water country, where the lost men are supposed to be.

American News.

Pittsburg, Nov. 24.—The strike of the railroad coal miners of two years ago is likely to be repeated. Several hundred men are now out, and unless the district convention called for next Wednesday in this city orders otherwise they will stay out. Work will cease in dozens of mines to-morrow, and the number of idle men will reach nearly 1,000. No more work will be done at any of the mines until after the convention. The operators have been notified by the mine owners that, commencing to-morrow, the price of mining will be 60 cents a ton, a reduction of 19 cents. The workmen regard this cut as excessive, as there has been no reduction in the selling price of coal. The convention will decide upon the price to be maintained throughout Pittsburg district, by strike if necessary.

Heiress to Millions.

Galena, Ill., Nov. 25.—A few weeks ago Mayor Birmingham received a letter announcing the death at San Francisco of Nicholas Lute, and asking for information regarding the whereabouts of Lute's sister, who was supposed to be living at Galena. A second letter from the law inquiry agency says this sister has fallen heiress to the estate of her brother, a fortune of $1,500,000. Lute was a resident of Galena, but went to California in 1852. His sister left Galena a few years later, and no one at present living in this locality is able to furnish the desired information.

General News.

Detroit, Nov. 24.—No attempt has yet been made to search the ruins for the bodies of the missing men. It is not known positively yet how the fire started, but it is believed to have been caused by an explosion on the fifth floor. The building occupied by Edson, Moore & Co. was valued at $112,000. There is $50,000 insurance on it. Edson, Moore & Co. estimate their loss at $500,000, on which there is an insurance of $425,000. The adjacent property suffered considerably and the total loss will be near the amount first stated.

Homespun Clothes for Swells.

Rough, picturesque material of a light gray or creamy color and coarse as a towel was occasionally seen last summer in the streets of New York worn by men of fashion during the hot weather, and usually all three pieces of the suit are worn together. Many people wonder where this cloth comes from, for it is not to be found in any of the tailor shops and is never seen in ready made clothing. The material is Canadian homespun. According to the World it is not the homespun which is made in steam mills, but is the real article, and it is made on hand looms by the inhabitants of Canada during the long winter there. No two pieces are ever alike, and it is impossible to "match" it. This cloth is admirably suited for hot weather. Its rough coat makes it look thick and heavy but it is loosely woven and the wind blows through it. Then, again, it can be thrown into a tub and washed. The cloth comes in all varieties of gray and it contains no dye. The habitant saves the fleeces of his sheep, one or two of which are likely to be black. He mixes the black with the white wool, and if he has no black sheep his homespun will be all white. The French Canadian farmer wears this homespun himself. It is so cheap in Canada and so universally worn by the poorer classes there that a gentleman from Three Rivers says: "Nobody making any pretensions to fashion or style in Canada would wear the homespun of the country, which, like blue jeans in some parts of the west is regarded as the mark of the countryman. Yet it is an excellent, honest, serviceable and handsome material. I have seen it in fashionable tailor shops in London, where it is sold for a high price on its merits. It has an air of picturesque distinction possessed of no other material of men's clothes." Who has ever seen American homespun? That, too, never gets into the New York market. The homespun made by the farmers and the farmers' wives of Maine is a handsome, closely woven brown material stained with butternut juice. In the mountains of West Virginia also a strong, serviceable material is made and worn by the "poor whites." Most of the Scotch homespuns are made in steam mills, as are many of the Irish. From a commercial standpoint they are better clothes than those made by hand, but they lack the individuality of the latter and are not so artistic.

The New Electric Car.

A recent cablegram from Great Britain brings the news that electric parcel cars, somewhat resembling in shape the parcel post vans, will soon be seen on the streets of London. The novelty in the construction of the cars consists in placing the "cumulators" underneath the outside of the body of the vehicle. It is estimated that for every mile run by the omnibus of one of the great companies the cost for horse traction is exactly 5d., while the cost of running an electrical car would be just 2 1-2d. The "cumulators" have been made so that they can be charged with electricity sufficient to last for four hours' work. The same electrical arrangement is about to be applied to broughams and private carriages, but it is doubtful whether a brougham would be much improved in appearance by having no horse in it, and appearance goes for a great deal when the question of commercial expediency has not to be considered. There is to be a new wheel, different from anything that has been seen or heard of before in this connection. It may by and by become a wheel for bicycles and such light vehicles of conveyance, but in the meantime it is meant to be a wheel for conveying a weight of eight or nine tons. It is simply a flat circular disc of compressed air, without spokes, rim or tire. Its walls are of such strength that they cannot be punctured and will not explode under the eight or nine tons pressure which will rest upon them. They will be fit for running on ordinary roads, and will be free from the noise of the present wheel. Cities will become as silent as the dead cities of the Zuyder Zee or the canals of Amsterdam. Nothing will be heard in the streets but the cry of the newsboy and the hawker, or the sound of the street organ. It is not designed to run on rails, nor, in fact, can it be made to do so. The vibration will be less than even that of a tramcar, and the new invention will probably soon run the car off the rails. Municipalities that are thinking of buying up their tramway companies cannot, in the meantime, do better than wait.

A FARMER'S HARD LUCK.

MEETS WITH AN ACCIDENT FOLLOWED BY PAINFUL RESULTS.

Mr. N. B. Hughson Tells a Story of Years of Suffering and How He Found Relief—The Circumstances Familiar to All His Neighbors.

From the Chatham Banner.

A Chatham Banner reporter while on news-gathering rounds a few days ago dropped into the well known drug store of Messrs. Pilkey & Co., and overheard scraps of conversation between customers, in which the words "Pink Pills" and the name "Hughson" were frequently repeated. With a reporter's instinct for a good news article, he asked for some particulars, and was told that if he called upon Mr. Hughson he would probably get a story well worth giving publicity. Mr. Hughson does a snug feed and sale stable business on Harvey street and thither the reporter repaired, and was somewhat surprised to find the very antipodes of an invalid. Mr. Hughson is a man of medium height, about 50 years of age, born with a good constitution, and who, until some three years ago only knew the meaning of the word sickness from the dictionary. Mr. Hughson is a stalwart craftsman by trade, and a good one, but some six years ago getting tired of that calling quitted it and rented a farm in Harwich. While returning from town one day on top of a load, one of his horses stumbled, and Mr. Hughson was pitched head foremost to the hard, frozen roadway. When he got home and the blood was wiped away his external injuries seemed trifling, but the grave trouble was inside, and took the form of a violent and almost constant headache. A week later he went into the bush to cut wood, and felt at every stroke as if his head would burst. He worked for half an hour and then went home, and for eight weeks his right side was wholly paralyzed and his speech gone. After a time this wore off and he was able to go about the house, though he could not walk. All this time he was attended by a physician, whose treatment, however, seemed of but little avail. In the following June he had a second stroke and was not out of bed for seven weeks and was left very weak. The belief that he was doomed to be a burden on those near and dear to him, that he was unable to take his place as a bread-winner, added mental to his physical anguish. But relief was coming and in a form he had not expected. He saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised and asked his physician about them. The latter said he had not much faith in these remedies, but they would do no harm, and Mr. Hughson got a supply which he began taking according to directions. At the outset his wife was also opposed to them, but before he had taken them long she noticed an improvement in his condition, and then was quite as strong in urging him to continue their use, and even took them with good results herself for heart weakness following la grippe. Continuing the use of the pills, Mr. Hughson found his terrible headaches leaving him and his strength returning, and soon found he could do light work on the farm near his house. He still continued using the Pink Pills until he had taken 14 boxes, and found himself fully restored to his old time strength. Mr. Hughson's old neighbors in Harwich never expected to see him on his feet again, and are astounded at his recovery, so much so that the fame of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has spread far and near throughout the township, and are the standard remedy in many households. Mr. Hughson can be seen by any of our citizens and will only too gladly verify the foregoing statements.

The reporter then called upon Messrs. Pilkey & Co., at the Central Drug store. They do not, they informed him, make a practice of booming any proprietary medicine, so that the lead taken by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is not due to persistent puffing but to irresistible merit, and on all sides their customers speak of them in terms of warmest praise.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom, the after affects of la grippe, diseases depending on the humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of any nature.

Bear in mind Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form is trying to defraud you and should be avoided. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and refuse all imitations and substitutes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y., at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

The Curse of Gambling.

Gambling is a crime breeder in whose wake other crimes follow. Thefts, embezzlements, defalcations, robberies, breaches of trust, wrecked homes, heartbroken women and beggared children are its direct results. It is a business which requires the abrogation of laws which protect public morals. The voice of the people is not allowed to be heard. It enters the primary, the canvass before election, and the election with purses filled with ill-gotten gains opened to tempt men to sell their votes. It buys candidates to pledge themselves to a disgraceful course before election, and enters the halls of the legislature with a corruption fund. The elective franchise is the verriest subterfuge when men, whom the people elect to represent them, are elected with a secret pledge to some gambling sharper, or with a fixed purpose to secretly sell themselves for gain to some schemer who has some plot against the highest interests of the state, to be consummated by means of blood money. There is no representation by the people, or for the people, when those chosen to represent them sell themselves for money or influence to the highest bidder. To bargain away public morals is to stab the state in its most vital part.—From "Pool Rooms and Pool Selling," by Anthony Comstock, in North American Review for November.

REBELLION IN NEW YORK.

A Political Boss Who Cares Nothing for the Authority of Courts.

In the town of Gravesend, Long Island, there has been an open rebellion against the legal authority of the state of New York, and a forcible resistance of the processes of the supreme court. In Gravesend John Y. McKane is the political boss, and he is as absolute a ruler as Lobengula has ever been in Matabele. The township of Gravesend includes that part of Long Island just south of Brooklyn, and within its boundaries are Coney Island, Gravesend Beach, and the villages of Sheepshead Bay, Greenfield, Kings Highway, and Gravesend. McKane is not only the political boss but is chief of police. In his political capacity he has under his command a much larger force of policemen than is usual except in large cities. This is due to the fact that the police is organized with reference to the great crowds that visit Coney Island during the summer and the three large race tracks within the township. The police, the police justices, and all other officials are creatures of McKane, and they obey his orders at all times to the letter. Within the township, according to the last census, dwell some eight thousand persons. Such a population ordinarily polls about fifteen hundred votes. The vote in Gravesend, however, is usually much larger than this, and it is always cast as McKane wishes. He has thus become a factor for the Democratic candidate when he so chooses, but now and then he gives it to the Republicans. As he indicates his preference the electors, in the proportion of from ten to twenty against one, cast their ballots. In preparation for the state election, held on the 7th of November, there were registered more than sixty-one hundred votes in the town of Gravesend. Here was a manifest intention to commit a fraud.

In Brooklyn, which is in the same county as Gravesend, Mr. William J. Gaynor has for several years been the active, fearless and uncompromising enemy of ring rule, and the foe of rascality in the city and county administration. In the contest that he has conducted in the courts he has met with so much success that the bosses hate him almost as much as they fear him. The Republicans and Independent Democrats nominated Mr. Gaynor as their candidate for justice of the supreme court. It became evident some weeks before the election that the good people of Brooklyn and Kings county were likely to overthrow the bosses at the polls, and these desperate law-breakers made preparations to do by fraud, if possible, what they could not accomplish with honest votes. Hence the immense registration at Gravesend.

Mr. Gaynor is not the man to sit quietly and permit wrong to be done without a protest. He therefore sent a force of clerks to Gravesend to copy the registration lists so that the eligibility of the electors might be inquired into. When these clerks arrived in Gravesend they were attacked by ruffians there and arrested by the police on trumped up charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and vagrancy. They were sent to jail, and after a time discharged, all of them were roughly handled and subjected to personal indignities. Mr. Gaynor then secured an order from Judge Cullen, of the supreme court, directing the inspectors of election in Gravesend to permit the copying of the registration lists. The inspectors avoided service of this order.

Meantime McKane had arranged to hold the election in Gravesend as he saw fit. He appointed both Democratic and Republican poll-watchers, and all of these were his willing henchmen. He said that the people of Gravesend must not be interfered with, but must be left alone to do their own voting in their own way. This was a declaration of independence of all authority but his own imperious and lawless will. The town of Gravesend is large in area, and is divided into six election districts. McKane, desirous to have all of the polling places always under his own eye, has constructed these districts so that they all centre in the town hall. To do this he has had to connect some of the outlying districts with mere ribbons of land only a few inches wide. These ribbons broaden as they reach the town hall, so that each of the six polling places—three on each side of the hall—is within its proper district. This plan was at once simple and ingenious, and most convenient for McKane's purposes. Though Mr. Gaynor did not secure copies of the registration lists he determined to have, if possible, honest watchers in his behalf at the Gravesend polls on election day. From Judge Barnard, of the New York supreme court, he secured an injunction, directed to McKane individually, and as chief of police, and also addressed to the police, restraining any and all of them from interfering with the watchers appointed by the Republican county committee. Mr. Gaynor then secured the appointment by this committee of the proper number of men, each of whom was an entirely reputable citizen of Kings County. These watchers included lawyers, doctors, clergymen merchants. At their head was Col. Alexander S. Bacon, one of the counsel of the Republican committee. To tell who Col. Bacon is will give some idea of the class of men sent by Mr. Gaynor to Gravesend, as each one is a fit associate of this gentleman. Col. Bacon is a graduate of West Point; he resigned and studied law, and now has a large law practice in Brooklyn. He is a colonel in the National Guard.

This gentleman, armed with the injunction from a justice of the supreme court, arrived in Gravesend half an hour before the polls were open. McKane was already on hand with about 60 men in police uniform and several hundred others all instructed to do his bidding. Lines had been drawn around the town hall, and within these lines no man was suffered to go without permission from McKane or his lieutenants. The carriage in which Col. Bacon and three of his associates drove to Gravesend stopped in front of the town hall. McKane was expecting the watchers. Col. Bacon got out of the carriage and this conversation ensued:

McKane—Mr. Bacon, I was expecting you. You're the man I am looking for. Now get out of here and be quick about it.

Col. Bacon—Mr. McKane, I have an injunction here from the supreme court for you.

McKane—Injunctions don't go here. I'll take no papers. I don't care a d—n for the supreme court or for Judge Barnard.

Col. Bacon—But you'll have to.

McKane (to his police)—Hustle this man out of here.

While this conversation was in progress Col. Bacon was all the time trying to give McKane the order of the court. The boss of Gravesend held his hands behind him, but Col. Bacon repeatedly touched McKane's person with the paper. This is said to be sufficient service under the circumstances. When McKane ordered his men to hustle Col. Bacon away they did so very quickly. They pushed and struck him and knocked him down several times. His clothes were torn and soiled and he was more or less bruised. Then he was arrested for creating a disturbance and taken to the jail at Coney Island. The companions and associate watchers shared just about as he had done, although not all were arrested. Those not taken into custody hurried to Brooklyn and reported the outrage. Steps were at once taken to secure the release of those who had been arrested and by noon all of them were free.

During the remainder of the day McKane and his men were undisturbed. They took no chances, however, but maintained a strict line around the town hall. No one not satisfactory to the boss was permitted to pass the lines. The tracks of the Prospect Park and Coney Island railway pass just in front of the town hall, and the passenger platforms are in the street over the way. Whenever a passenger got out of a train he was at once pounced upon and cross-examined as to the business that brought him to Gravesend. If he was satisfactory he was allowed to go his way, but if he was suspected he was threatened with arrest unless he left town at once. And the police saw to it that those ordered away obeyed these orders. The newspaper reporters were permitted to have some liberty, but two of them were for a while under arrest. The law requires that all barrooms and saloons shall be kept closed while the polls are open. In the neighborhood of the Gravesend town hall every other house is a bar-room. Not one of these was closed at all during the day. On the contrary, all of them were conspicuously open, and they did so thriving a business that by noon of election day drunkenness was the rule in Gravesend. Before night had come men stupid with drink were sleeping on the bare ground in the chief village of the kingdom of McKane.

There appears to be no doubt that McKane and his men will be brought to justice. They can be punished in various ways. Judge Barnard can punish them summarily for contempt of orders; then they can be indicted and tried for criminal contempt of court, the penalty for which is a fine of $500 and imprisonment for one year; then they can be indicted and punished for violation of the ballot reform law, and here the penalty is a fine of from $250 to $3,000, or imprisonment for from six months to three years, or both. A vigilant prosecuting officer would find no difficulty in finding evidence both as to the registration and the voting. There were some 3,500 votes cast, more than twice as many as are qualified to vote in the town. And then the clerks who were arrested on a false charge, the watchers who were beaten and arrested, and all others who were maltreated by the orders of McKane, have redress by civil actions for damages against McKane and his henchmen. If these men be followed up with the vigor and righteous zeal that their crimes should excite, each of them will get some measure of his deserts, and the rebellion in Gravesend, in the state of New York, will have ended in an advantage to the state and the good people of it, for a number of criminals will be placed in prison, where they belong, and the criminal classes will have been taught that the law is supreme and must be respected and obeyed.

Mr. Gaynor was elected by 30,000 votes in a county which is generally Democratic by 25,000 votes.—Jno. Gilmer Speed in Harper's Weekly.

For Friends Away Over the Sea.

The Christmas number of the Montreal Star is coming out in a few days. The bare announcement was sufficient to create widespread rejoicing, for it is safe to say there never was in any country a Christmas paper that was received with such applause as the Christmas number of the Montreal Star in past years. To this day letters are received from Great Britain expressive of the admiration of the Christmas Star, called forth throughout England, Ireland and Scotland. The Christmas Star is a thing to be proud of, and in sending it away to friends one is conscious that it is sure to give immense pleasure to those who receive it. Lucky will they be who can secure a Christmas Star when there is such a clamor for them.

Improving the Eyes.

It is satisfactory to be told by Mr. Ellis that blindness in England is "slowly declining," though Great Britain stands in this respect behind two other European countries, and three more come before Ireland. Short-sightedness, however, appears to be increasing everywhere, Germany having a signal and sinister pre-eminence in this respect. A Frech doctor has noted the remarkable fact that wild beasts caught quite young or born in captivity become short-sighted, the conclusion being that the eye adapts itself to its habitual sphere of vision, unless "educated," to use Mr. Ellis' term, to see objects at a distance, loses the capacity of so doing. Even in after life the eye may be, to some extent, so educated, though probably only when the myopia is not considerable. It is thus within the experience of the present writer that his sight greatly improved in days gone, when he became a volunteer, by practice at the butts, so that while at first he could not see the target to shoot at without spectacles at the 300-yard range, after a twelvemonth or so he only needed to put on spectacles at the 440 yards. But beyond that range he was never able to dispense with them. Country excursions are, therefore, extremely valuable as means of strengthening the sight of town-bred children; and the conductors of such excursions should take pains to direct the eyes of the children to distant objects—to the furthest hill, church tower or any other land mark, noting, if possible, any incapacity to discern the selected object, and then selecting some nearer one for the weaker-sighted.—The Spectator.

The Nanaimo Telegram sets forth a new explanation of its position in these words: "What we did do was to point out the mistake of a community electing representatives to the provincial legislature who can be so blindly led by the Times and other opposition organs like it, in the sole effort to defeat the government, that they overlook the interests of their constituents." This seems like repeating in different language the statement that hitherto the local government has refused to do justice to Nanaimo because Nanaimo had failed to send supporters of the government to the legislature. Whether the Telegram sees the full force and meaning of this conclusion we know not, but other people will have no difficulty in doing so. An honest and conscientious government would take care to do justice to every locality, irrespective of the character of its representatives. The Telegram finds that the character of Nanaimo's representatives has led the provincial government to deny justice to Nanaimo; therefore the inevitable conclusion from the Telegram's premises is that the government is dishonest and wanting in conscience. The only fault that the paper can find with the representatives, as appears from the extract above, is their preference for the opposition as against the government side; if they had been able to sink their opinions and their consciences and support the government they would have been classed among the "right sort" at once. We need say nothing more of the base and degraded character of the political principles which the Telegram thus preaches in cold blood; all decent and self-respecting people in Nanaimo or any other place must resent the imputation that their suffrages can be bought by the government with the expenditure of public money. The insult is made all the worse when they are told that this expenditure is their just due, but that the government withholds it until they elect representatives who will support the government. We very much mistake the character of the Nanaimo people if they do not show their contempt for such teachings as the Telegram offers them.

WHAT IT MEANS.

The Colonist tries to take comfort out of the Winnipeg election by asserting that the much-discussed school act was responsible for the return of Mr. Martin. The News-Advertiser and the Telegram wish their readers to believe that Mr. Martin won because he had greater personal popularity and wider experience in politics than his opponent. Now there is not an atom of evidence in support of either of these theories, and the papers quoted must be well aware of that fact. We are afraid that they cannot be acquitted of the charge of deliberately attempting to mislead their readers. From first to last in the Winnipeg campaign the one issue prominently presented, the one subject discussed on the platform and in the press, was tariff reform. It is true that some endeavors were made to bring in side issues; for instance, Mr. Martin was accused of being an annexationist and also of being an opponent of the Hudson Bay railway project; but the electors brushed these aside with a promptitude that emphasized their perception of the one important question. They declared most unmistakably that they were in favor of tariff reform and that they were not satisfied with the government's position in regard to that question. There is no room for doubt on that point, and we do not see how the Conservative papers can hope to gain anything by ignoring the truth.

Some days ago we had occasion to comment on an Ottawa dispatch referring to Minister Foster's position in relation to the export of sawlogs. Another dispatch from the capital seems to indicate more strongly that the export duty is to be renewed. It reads: "Ministerial organs publish an interview with Hon. Mr. Foster, finance minister, in which he intimates that the government intends to reimpose the export duty on logs. He says an inquiry is being made regarding the matter and that if the conditions remain as at present when parliament meets, that is to say if the U. S. congress does not reduce its duty upon lumber, the export duty upon logs will be reimposed. Ottawa lumbermen do not approve of Foster's proposal as the reimposition of the export duty on Canadian logs will be followed by the doubling of the American import duty on Canadian lumber without any legislation by congress. They are also of the opinion that Foster's announcement will tend to spoil the chance of having Canadian coal, lumber and iron ore placed on the United States free list, and it is unwise to propose new restraints upon international trade at the present juncture." Minister Foster seems to be plentifully lacking in a quality quite necessary to a finance minister, namely, discretion.

Montreal Herald: In his letter to the Globe Principal Grant said that so far as he knew there is only one man in the Canadian parliament who was qualified to speak authoritatively on financial matters. That man is Sir Richard Cartwright. This will seal the principal's doom with the Tories, for to say a good word for Sir Richard is an unpardonable offence in their eyes. Yet the statement is quite correct. There are many excellent business men in parliament on both sides of the house, but not one who in the discussion of financial matters can rank with Sir Richard, who has all his life been an assiduous student of such problems. Principal Grant attributes the acidity which somtimes marks Sir Richard's utterances to the fact that he has to occasionally "let out quite a little of the contempt he feels." A great deal of contempt is permissible to him in view of the attainment of the men who usually undertake to reply to his criticisms.

This new indication of the near approach of a Dominion general election comes by way of a dispatch from Moncton, N.B.: "It is reported here that the engineer's department has instructions to send men out surveying prospective branch lines for the Intercolonial railway with a view of promoting a canvass for the general elections, which will be much sooner than generally supposed. Two engineers start to-morrow to survey a branch line to Sydney, Cape Breton, to Jordan river, a distance of 20 miles." Sir John Thompson stated to an interviewer some time ago that the general election would probably come "like a thief in the night." Liberals should be on their guard, and prepare for a contest during the next year.

Charged With Criminal Libel.

Winnipeg, Nov. 24.—The returning officer to-day declared that Joseph Martin Liberal, had been elected for Winnipeg by 425 majority. In connection with the recent election and arrest of Chamberlain for personating, R. L. Richardson, editor of the Tribune, was arrested to-day at the office of his newspaper on a charge of criminal libel. Information was laid yesterday by A. W. Ross, M. P., and sworn to before Col. Peebles. The alleged libel complained of is the whole of an article published in the Tribune yesterday with the headlines: "The Grossest Corruption." "Read the letters addressed to A. W. Ross, M. P., from Small, of Toronto," and "Mistaken Confidence," which "without legal justification or excuse is likely to injure the reputation of Arthur Wellington Ross by exposing him to hatred, contempt and ridicule, and is designed to insult said Arthur Wellington Ross." The preliminary hearing came up at the police court to-day, but the trial was postponed until Thursday next, and Richardson was released on $500 bail. The Tribune to-night says its editor cannot be scared by A. W. Ross's action, and publishes full-size photo facsimilies of letters found on Chamberlain. After the Richardson case at the police court, the charge against Chamberlain alias John Ayer, of Toronto, was brought before the magistrate. He was charged with personating Matthew Leggatt, of Hamilton. Chamberlain asked for a remand and the case was enlarged till Monday next.

R. L. Richardson was again arrested to-night on a second charge of criminal libel on a warrant issued at the instance of A. W. Ross, M. P. The charge is of repeating the alleged libel of Thursday in publishing letters said to be found on the person of Chamberlain.

The Amended Geary Act.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The new regulations as to the registration of Chinese under the extension of the Geary act, issued from the treasury department to-day, provide that all Chinese laborers in the United States must register before the collector of internal revenue before May 3rd next, or else be subject to deportation. Chinamen who registered under the original Geary law will also be required again to register under its extension now. There is nothing new in the regulations as to Chinese registration except the one credible witness, instead of two, must certify to the Chinaman's good character when he presents his application for registration, and this witness may be a Chinaman or other person, instead of a white person only, as in the old regulations. On making application a Chinaman must present at his own expense two photographs of himself, one of which is attached to the certificate when issued to him and one attached to his duplicate certificate filed in the collector's office. In addition to the certificate having the photographs attached to it, the certificate itself contains the Chinese name, age, late residence, occupation, height, color of eyes, complexion, physical marks, and peculiarities for identification. Provision is made for a Chinaman securing a duplicate certificate, but proof of his having lost his first one must be positive and proved to the satisfaction of the court, through which only he can obtain new certificates.

As soon as separation takes place a grand lodge will be formed.

The Toronto city council again considered the application of the promoters of the Hurontario canal project for a franchise to supply the city with heat, light, water and power. After a long wrangle it was decided that the franchise sought be granted, but that the canal should first be constructed. This is not regarded as a victory by the promoters of the project.

A Buffalo, N. Y., dispatch says: "This port is reaping an unusual harvest of Manitoba wheat this fall. During the past week 542,030 bushels of this wheat reported here direct from Port Arthur, to say nothing of that which has come in bond from Duluth. Of course the tariff makes it necessary to export all this Canadian grain, but Buffalo gets at once 1 cent per bushel out of all grain handled here."

The Toronto Trades and Labor Council adopted a report condemning the farming pupil business. The report referred to the mysterious disappearance of Raffles Moore, a young Englishman who paid the Anglo-American Farming Association $400 for the privilege of coming to Canada as a farm pupil, and to the suspicion that the young Englishman found murdered near Hamilton was Moore. The opinion was expressed that the high commissioner should urge imperial legislation that would put a prompt and permanent end to all fraudulent organizations devoted to fleecing innocent people under the plausible plea of finding them situations in Canada or other British colonies.

Portland, Nov. 24.—The game law made by the last legislature only allows grouse, pheasants, quail, etc., to be sold in the market one month in the year. During this month, which expired on the 15th inst., dealers accumulated a stock of Mongolian pheasants in cold storage. Now Fish and Game Protector McGuire will commence suit to prevent dealers from selling game from cold storage. He tried the same thing last spring with regard to salmon, and the dealers won in the supreme court. They look on the new suit as merely intended to make fees and costs.

Spokane, Wn., Nov. 24.—Further trouble over the labor situation is brewing, brought about by a secret meeting of the Law and Order league this afternoon. At 2 o'clock a large crowd, including many leading men and agitators, were present at the hall. Hon. George Turner, candidate for the United States senate, called the meeting to order. In a speech he strongly condemned demonstrations of workingmen, and continued: "A mob assembled in the superior court room to overawe the judiciary and intimidate the counsel. This mob had gathered at the Review building and made the inmates believe that violence was intended. A mob had paraded the streets and speeches threatening death and destruction had been made." He then said: "Now I want every anarchist to get out of this room," but no one moved. By this time the hall was packed and others were constantly arriving. A committee of fifteen was appointed to remove objectionable persons, and about fifty were fired out, but others immediately took their places. A committee of fifteen was appointed to see that the city was protected to-night. The workingmen held a stormy meeting to-night to protest against the utterances made against them at the law and order meeting.

Jersey City, Nov. 25.—Except for the patrol of policemen about the Lehigh Valley tracks, there was nothing this morning to indicate a strike. Trains were moving as usual. One freight was stoned early this morning while passing through the outskirts of Newark. Section meetings of employees on the Jersey Central and Lackawanna were held in Lafayette last night, and a special committee appointed to wait on the officials of those roads. The men say if the demands of the committee are not complied with there will be trouble on those roads.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 25.—This is the seventh day of the strike on the Lehigh Valley railway, and both sides continue to claim a victory. According to the officials, the freight blockade is removed.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc., none impress me more than my own case. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

—"Admitted to the Bar," Doblin and Klein's new play, presented at the Victoria theatre last evening by Charles Dickson, was enjoyed by the large number present. Mr. Dickson, although not an old friend of the Victoria theatregoers, has already won their favor, and the mention of his name is enough to fill the opera house, though it did not do it last year by a good deal. Last evening's play is full of fun, but it is not nearly so amusing as "Incog," which is to be played by the same company this evening. No doubt the house will be crowded again this evening.

—Major Craigie Sharp, midwinter fair commissioner, was in the city yesterday evening. He distributed a lot of printed matter, and in the evening addressed a meeting at the Board of Trade rooms. He spoke of the benefit British Columbia would derive by an exhibit and suggested that a building be erected in which to place the exhibits of the province. This, he said, could be done for $5,000 or $10,000. A vote of thanks was tendered Major Sharp, and the chairman assured him that there would be an exhibit from British Columbia, even if the provincial government did not take any action.

—The sale of sealskins at Lampson's, London, will take place on Wednesday next, and the sealing owners look for cable advices on the afternoon of that day. —The Northern Pacific railroad company has given notice that navigation on Coeur d'Alene lake will be discontinued on December 1 and resumed about April 1. During this temporary suspension business between points west of Spokane and points in the Coeur d'Alene country will take rates applicable via Coeur d'Alene City, but shipments must be routed and way billed via De Smet.

—W. D. English, Jr., of Oakland, Cal., who with his sister has been visiting his uncle, M. M. English, left this morning for home. Mr. English is a son of W. D. English, who was recently appointed collector of the port of San Francisco. A favorite star in a new play is always a strong attraction, and Mademoiselle Rhea may be sure of a cordial welcome on her first appearance in Victoria in several seasons, and which will take place on Wednesday evening, Nov. 29th. Tamar, the Queen of Sheba, is a character which Rhea has wished to create ever since she first visited America, but until this season she has never found an author who could treat the subject in accordance with her ideas. Adrien Barbusse, the celebrated Parisian dramatist and critic, has produced a story of absorbing love interest and exalted purpose. The scenery is new, and the incidental music, by Oscar Commetant, is an important feature of the performance, and the production is in every way worthy of Mademoiselle's high reputation as an artist.

—The Salvationists self-denial effort is from Nov. 25th to Dec. 2nd. They believe the proceeds for this year will show an increase on the previous years. Of the total amount collected by each corps in last year's self-denial effort Canada had $58 a corps, being higher than the total of France, Denmark, Norway, Germany, Belgium, Italy or India. The highest total was reached by New Zealand, $120.74 a corps. In many cases the officers are living during the week on bread and water. Others who receive salary are devoting it to the self-denial fund, and many of the rank and file are giving one week's earnings to the fund. Arrangements have been made for a house to house visitation by officers and soldiers, who have distributed envelopes explaining the object of the fund. Early morning prayer meetings are the rule. A large number not salvationists have agreed to forego during this week the use of tobacco and intoxicating drinks to increase their self-denial fund.

—For an evening of continuous laughter there is nothing, it is said, to compare with Mrs. R. Pacheco's roaring comedy, "Incog," which Mr. Charles Dickson will present at the Victoria theatre to-night. This now famous comedy has for two years toured the United States, meeting everywhere success; in fact its triumphs have been remarkable, being the recipient of unanimous praise from the entire press of the country, running 100 nights in New York, and 50 each in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and San Francisco. A sketch of the play and plot shows how all sorts of funny situations are caused by a gentleman making up to resemble another gentleman, who had a twin brother looking exactly like him. Three men looking alike, one married and two making love, are calculated to make a good deal of trouble for one another when they all visit the same house. The play is full of action. A large audience will doubtless be present. To-night, as an appetizer to the menu of laughter which he serves in "Incog," Mr. Dickson will present the new curtain-raiser in one act entitled "The Salt Cellar."

—Tuesday next the joint committees of the Pythian lodges will meet to make arrangements for the Pythian ball.

—A sealing boat was picked up in the outer habor drifting about. A notice has been posted up on the custom house board.

Keary, and Mrs. A. J. Bechtel and family.

—C. P. R. Agent George L. Courtney has been advised of the sailing of the steamship Arawa from Australian ports. When she left for Fiji and Honolulu she had 30 saloon and 50 steerage passengers, 100,000 pounds of overland freight, 50 tons for San Francisco and 25 tons for Victoria. It is expected the Arawa will receive as much again at Honolulu. The steamship is due here between December 8 and 10, and will sail on the usual day.

—The clipper bark Thermopylae has been taking another turn at the record for fast sailing. Captain Packard, of Astoria, received a letter from Captain Winchester, of the Thermopylae, dated at Hong Kong, stating that the vessel travelled 6,400 miles with square yards in 43 days, and in three days after leaving the city was 900 miles from the coast. Winchester says her performance was a magnificent one, and shows that she has not lost the trick of her wonderful bursts of speed made in the palmy days when she raced home from China to London with her cargoes of tea.

—The old portion of the Alberta Railway and Coal Company's road, from Dunmore on the Canadian Pacific west to Lethbridge in Alberta, Canada, is now being changed to standard gauge, the present gauge of this division, as well as of the line from Lethbridge south to Great Falls, Mont., being three feet, says the Railroad Gazette. Over ninety miles of standard gauge track has been laid, the entire distance being 100 miles. It is expected that the work will be completed by November 15. The road connects at Dunmore with the Canadian Pacific main line, and it is thought likely that the division which is now being made standard gauge will be used by that company as a portion of the proposed new line through the Crow's Nest pass. The surveys made by the company this year have nearly all started from Lethbridge.

Odd Relay Stations Along the Lonely Mountain Way.

GRAY AND SCRAGGY AS EAGLE'S NESTS

A Merciful Provision for Travellers—Grave and Sodden Folk of the Stations—The Meals Served—Wondrous Outlooks.

(From our own Correspondent.)

London, Nov. 11, 1893.—Among the characteristic roadside scenes of Norway the "stations," where carrioles and ponies are changed, seem to have the keenest interest to thousands of tourists who madly rush in the brief summer months through this grandly beautiful northern land. There is nothing quite like them in any other country. They serve the purpose of relay establishments, as did the roadside inns of old England and New England, half a century or more ago; you can find a bed and food behind their curious wooden walls, because the government compels their proprietors or masters to furnish the same; but there the similarity ends.

Not a single feature of the bustle, cheeriness and activity of the old coaching days is here. There is no ringing post horn to pierce the gorges and valleys with its musical echoes. No "whip" sends his smoking four-in-hand alongside the welcoming inn at a mad gallop, or bandies eloquent phrases with ruddy barmaids. No rubicund landlord or sleek hostess beams upon you as you arrive, or sends cheery farewells after you as you depart. Seen from a distance they seem as gray, bleak and scraggy, as an eagle's nest among the crags. When you have reached them and come to know them, the grave, gay, lonely and colorless tones still prevail on every hand. Specks of animated soddenness, threading ever-changing and sublime desolation, are the structures and inmates of the roadside travelers' "stations" of Norway.

These stations are good and bad, luxurious and repulsive, hearty and hopeless, as is true of wayside inns in all countries; and range in prestige and comfort from the noted Toftemoen of Gudbrandsdal to those villainous station caves of gloom like Storsveen and Vetti Farm. Toftemoen is a huge, rambling gaard or farm house and station combined. It is one of the most ancient homes in Norway, and is even renowned in the sagas. Its proprietor is not only station master, providing travelers with entertainment in return for government exemption from taxes, but a wealthy landed proprietor, and, who is of more account in Norway, a lineal descendant of the first king of Norway, Harold Haarfager. Consequently he is of mythological descent; for did not good Harold claim his lineage from Odin, the true Hercules of Northland?

This quaint old place has many huge, paneled rooms, filled with ancient cabinets containing priceless Scandinavian relics; and there is more solid silver in Toftemoen station than in the home of any American money king, or in richest English princely house. The late king of Norway and Sweden tarried here for entertainment when on his way to his coronation at Throndhjem. The testy little station master not only insisted on sitting at table with the king, as became his own royal descent, but when the king suggested that his silver be unpacked to provide proper table service, this royal station keeper brusquely informed him that his own silver would serve not only for that occasion, but for a much larger party than any Norse king had ever traveled with. And so it did, to the amazement of the noble guests and to all Norway ever after. The members of the humble, yet royal house of Tofte, have never married outside of their own family; and are gradually become mental and physical freaks; but to remain a day or two at their half castle, half inn, and observe their antics as hostler and royalty combined, is to possess an experience hardly securable outside of Norway.

The stations at Storsveen and Vetti Farm are little more than rough, long rooms, upon which open kitchen hovels, their dirt floors usually strewn with small tufts of spruce or pine, possessing huge chimney corners as large as the kitchens themselves. At one side of the long room is something better than a shed, where are narrow bunks. You will get sheep-skins for coverlids, black bread, blacker coffee and goat's cheese for food at such stations as Storsveen and Vetti Farm. The latter station is really the starting point from which the wondrous Vetti fos or waterfall of Vetti is reached after a two hours' journey. It is little more than a hut. There are two or three cold storage boxes of sleeping rooms. You must perform your toilet in the common room; and the food is no better than you may secure at the lowliest peasant's home. For comfort these and the like are really surpassed at the shebeens of Donegal and Connemara, in Ireland, or at the folkless stone huts along the way from Catania to the smoky rim of Aetna's heights in Sicily.

But the average station is fairly comfortable. It must be borne in mind that it was never originally intended for an inn. As travel has increased in Norway, the government has said to Jan Jansen or Ole Olesou who was and still is a bonder or landed proprietor alongside the national highways: "You shall entertain travelers and not impose upon them. Your gaard or farm shall henceforth be legally a station. You shall become its keeper or master. In consideration of this (if the conditions forbid profit) such a per cent. of your taxes will be remitted; or (if it is a place which of necessity will secure revenue) you are to pay so much annually to the government. You shall provide each a number of carrioles or stoll carts, or both, and so many horses, and the legal charge to travelers for the same to the stations, each way, shall be so much. You must be responsible for any harm coming to travelers either at your station or in your charge, while posting from your station to the next. If you break the law you shall be fined and imprisoned!"

So the roadside farm with its antiquated outbuildings has gradually developed into the station. The bonder or farmer, or his eldest son, has gone through the evolution from the simplest and most primitive condition of little more than lowly peasant life in Norwegian solitude, to the vexatious life of still conducting his mountain and valley farm and maturing and housing his crops in the brief northern summer, and at the same time caring for the hosts who flit by him at breakneck speed in their efforts to see all Norway in the selfsame all but too brief period. Not too much should be expected from such characters and conditions. You are fairly sure of some things; and absolutely certain of others.

Whatever these stations may have been in the days of foot-and-knapsack travel, when the traveler sat at meals with the bonder and his servants in the huge smoke-colored living room, and slept in a common bed with the entire household upon the same floor, cleanliness is now nearly universal; hearty and ample food are not lacking; civility yields rude yet sufficient and kindly service; and by a little tact and deference the soddenness and gravity of these sturdy folks are transformed into the very sunshine of genial hospitality. You may be sure of the righting of every error; and certain of an integrity in all dealings, so exact, punctilious and unvarying, as to leave no doubt that universal honesty is as deeply rooted a national characteristic of Norwegians, in Norway, as it is lacking in all other traveled lands.

One may travel six, eight, ten or even twelve miles through majestic scenes of nature without sight of a single living thing. Perhaps the only suggestion of life in the entire distance will be the tinkle of the cow bells from the hidden vales among the mountain heights, where the living Huldres in utter loneliness care for their summer herds. Even this hint of life amid desolate grandeur reaches one burdened with an unutterable sense of dreary remoteness. Suddenly emerging from a shadowy gorge, or rounding the base of some precipice towering thousands of feet above your head, or again when beginning the descent from some frozen field, your always cheery skydgut or postboy will triumphantly—in a tone of rejoicing at good things to come—shout the name of a near station. It will stand huddled upon some dreary mass of rocks; jumbled against a patch of lichened birch; strewn along a bit of level, winding way, or, perching upon the edge of some mighty rock-cleft where a torrent thunders below, seem like a mass of gray rock broken from the heights above, poising before a final plunge into the roaring abyss beneath.

As you approach the place three or four or perhaps half a dozen substantial, low-built structures will be gradually disclosed. The larger one will perhaps be a comparatively large structure, set at odd angle against the highway. It has been built by the bonder station master himself, and while of pine, has huge hewn timbers, a low solid roof, square windows, often protruding so as to give a wide window seat as a provision for potted flowers; and almost invariably boasts a door-porch remarkable in appearance to the famous old south porches of the more ancient parish churches of England. But if this structure is of recent origin, it is still as gray and antique in appearance as all the rest. Behind this, or extending from its rear wall, is the original farm house, often 200 or 300 years old, though built of wood; altogether a mass of patch-work in pine and thatching, with a cavernous chimney-top towering at one corner; the whole reminding you of the stone-built structures of the English lake-district, evincing generations of on-building and patching of additional house-room of all sizes and shapes, and at every conceivable angle.

Extending from this farther along the highway, with perhaps a "return" at the end which abuts the road, the whole forming a sort of open and still somewhat protected station yard, is a series of substantial sheds, low, deep and capacious, in which may stand travelers' carrioles and ponies; and where all sorts of odds and ends may be temporarily stored. Usually across the way are three or four lesser buildings, often arranged so as to form the remaining side of the quadrangle-like station. In one may live a family or two who serve the bonder in the fields, upon the heights with the herds, or still assist in the manifold duties imposed by summer travel.

Another structure may have simply one huge long room, where lowly peasant or other travelers are lodged in bunks against the wall, or upon straw and fir branches upon the earthen floor. This will also be provided with a long deal table, some rude pottery and cooking utensils, and a fire place where such as are sheltered here may prepare their own food. Besides these there is alway the storhans or storehouse. It is an odd structure, strongly built, setting upon uncemented squares of hewn stone, several feet above the ground, to escape earth-damp, frequent freshets and accumulations of snow. Its stories project each beyond the other to the roof which is still an unaccountable projection; the whole having at a distance the appearance of an unwieldy pagoda. In this huge-timbered stronghold is stored the grain and all the many supplies for man and beast against the severe needs of the dark and almost unending Northland winter.

One other structure to be often found at most of these stations is interesting from its uses. It is a bell-tower or belfry, in which is placed a bell, and occasionally two or three, though the latter never form a chime. These bells are in common use on nearly all Norwegian farms, where the bonder's lands may lie at a long distance from the gaard. The bell is used for calling the farm-folk from the fields or mountains, or to convey various orders and directions or intelligence to those absent from the farm house or station. Indeed it has all manner of uses. If the station keeper is absent when travelers arrive and demand his attention, he is thus notified. The approach of the dreaded Lensmand or circuit-riding constable, who is also a sort of a magistrate, is thus heralded. People are brought by it from great distances in the mountains to merry-making, weddings, or funerals. And often at "slow" stations, where the supply of horses and stoll-carts is almost always a matter of accommodation on the part of neighbors, who may live miles away in unseen nooks and glens, the station bell tolled in a certain jerky, peremptory manner by the master will bring pony and cart from invisible retreat far more speedily than fleetest lad or even less effective bullying and bribes.

You are not ushered into, but you enter, a large common room at these stations. There is the bare floor; a round or a square deal table, perhaps possessing a cover, often strewn with guide books in all languages, and quite a selection of books, pamphlets and magazines left behind by travelers; and upon which also invariably lies the open day book, in which all complaints and praises are freely recorded; a few strong chairs; the horse-hair sofa which smiles a grim welcome to you in all lands, and a gaudily painted bureau or chest of drawers, which usually bears the name of the station-master's wife and the date of her marriage. This is the entire furnishing; but everything is winsomely clean, and the window seats are aglow with plants and flowers. If you secure a single apartment in this more capacious portion of the station, there will only be room enough within it to dispose of your scant luggage beneath your bed, and to disrobe while sitting upon its sharp, bunk-like edge; for your wash-basin and soap will stand upon your single chair. If a party can occupy the same room, and all do not desire to retire at the same time, a little more space for individual action may be secured. For myself, I soon learned that away next the roof of these old inns there were cosy, roomy places with huge old beds, though ascending and descending required the agility and precision of the hod-carrier's step.

Your meals are taken in a comfortable room containing only a long table, some stout chairs, and window ledges filled with flowers. Good tea, poor coffee, fair butter, oceans of cream and milk; half a dozen varieties of cheese, an excellent bread, with an abundance of fresh eggs, are always to be had. There are wild strawberries of wonderful sweetness and flavor, morning, noon and night. Fresh meat is a rarity at some stations, though haunches of mutton, hot or cold, are common; while at nearly all stations trout and salmon are provided to repletion. The entire establishment is simple, humble, clean and good—without the element of good cheer. The station-master's wife is an overworked body who plods and courtseys apparently the day and night through. Her great blue eyes are grave, wondering and wearied to such an extent that you fear she is about to burst into tears.

There are two or three flaxen-haired maidens who plod, and duck their heads and are eternally shaking hands with you if you are kindly disposed or bestow the slightest gratuity. If it is an important station there is a porter, a shock-headed, tireless, smileless man of all work, with a face of that leathery whiteness which comes from loss of sleep. The skydsguts or postboys, the only ever merry-faced folk of Norway, sleep with the cattle, eat in the undiscoverable dungeon regions of the kitchen, and are endlessly dancing about the stations upon petty missions, providing the only enlivening spirit or spectacle from one end of Norway to the other.

But if meagre rest and entertainment are within these curious mountain eeries, what wondrous outlooks are given from every flower-crowded window. Lofty peaks gleam above the clouds in the upper sunlight. Tremendous precipices loom above smiling or blackened valleys. Measureless forests of eternal green stretch away to purple distances. Ridges of frozen fields seem impassable thresholds to worlds of unspeakable desolation. Fissures and gorges streak with black the sides of misty mountains. Almost everywhere above all flame and pulse the ghostly glacier lights; and ever beating entrance to your almost dreamless sleep comes the far, faint, yet omnipresent and solemn voices of marvelous, mighty waterfalls.

EDGAR L. WAKEMAN.

Between Two Eras.

The nineteenth century sees the passing of great men. They and the century end together. Will ever another hundred years see such mental giants? Will the opportunities be vast enough to make men mighty enough to grasp them? Yet the problem of laborers' rights, of the finances of nations, of the curse of war, of the marvels of invention are still unsolved. Reformers come when reform is a necessity, the man rises to greatness by being a pioneer in the change.

Gladstone and Bismarck are old men, Blaine is dead, McMahon was buried yesterday, Lincoln went long ago. Tennyson, Longfellow, Whittier, Whitman, Victor Hugo, Thackeray, Scott and Dickens live only in their works. Wagner left no successor. Beethoven died in 1827, Gounod a few days later, and the singers whose voices thrilled our youth are old and there are none like them to follow.

When the few truly great actors, men and women, cease to enchant and instruct, who can fill their places? We of to-day cannot wait for the development of budding genius. Is not the patent deterioration of the stage caused by the paucity of talent, the scarcity of the divine fire that makes the artist in any profession immortal?

We have the works of great painters only; Meissonier is dead, and the peasant painter, Millet, has joined the vast majority. The creator of Joan of Arc died in his brilliant youth. Bourgnereau is years, though not in his work, is past his prime. Shall we live to see the students of yesterday the great painters of the future?

Livingstone is long gone into a vastly unexplored country, and Africa is no longer dark. Discovery has become a trade; we are forced to glorify the commercial traveller who went to speculate in elephants' tusks.

Women whose devotion to the future of women, the betterment of her condition under the law and in the working world, have gone, their mission fulfilled, and the few remaining pioneers in that once almost hopeless cause are past the half century post.

The noble gift of oratory is almost a lost art, men who can sway a multitude by charm of imagery and manner can be counted on one's fingers. Beecher left no successor. The adventurous spirit of the discoverer of new territory finds no outlet; the plains are gridironed with iron rails, the seas ploughed by iron ships independent of wind and weather. The north pole still exercises its fatal charm, but the small benefit to humanity its possibilities disclose, and the waste of life involved will even beyond our time limit its exploration.

A great king died in Germany not long ago and Queen Victoria has reigned half a century. The soldier king of Italy left a worthy successor, but two ancient thrones of Europe are possessed by children whose governing power lies far in the future.

Little wars in far sections agitate feebly the calm surface of the globe. Yet Europe increases its war forces, and the fires of discontent smoulder in the heart of France and the spirit of conquest has not died out in Russia, who must give her soldiers work abroad for peace at home.

The optimist cannot deny the rising discontent of the toiling millions, who in a few years may seek to solve the question of their condition. The passing of a century is so slow, yet reading backward by the light of history it is the recollection of the aged. The causes of mighty changes endure for generations—the change happens in a day.

The man who learned to read his prayer by a tallow candle presses a button and floods his house with the dazzling light of electricity. The whale hunter down in old New Bedford lights his kerosene lamp and thinks perhaps of its convenience with a retrospect of the dangers of the past when he scoured the seas for the great leviathan.

Not far from the beginning of our century natural gas would have suggested witchcraft, and a female Edison would have been hanged for a witch in "red Salem."

That the work of great minds remain in literature, invention, music, art, statesmanship and exploration is a strong force of consolation in a day when times seem to move slowly. All men are heirs of great men. Nature knows no waste; time crystallizes all the best of the past; history, like geology, is told in strata; the building of the nineteenth century can be read by preceding ages, as the twentieth shall be by our great one, whose finis we will soon be called upon to write.—Denver Republican.

FOR THE DOUBTING!

MEDICAL EVIDENCE!

Strong! Truthful! Convincing!

If medical evidence is necessary to convince the doubting and skeptical, about the superiority of lactated food over all other forms of nourishment, then we can produce a grand array of testimony from the doctors. The following letters from an eminent physician and president of a well known medical society will, we are certain, influence many who are anxious to select the best infant food:

"Since receiving samples of lactated food sent me two cases have occurred in my practice in which its use seemed to be indicated, one an artifically fed infant, the other an adult with malassimilation accompanying a chronic pulmonary trouble. In both cases several other preparations of artificial and concentrated foods had been given without good results. Since the administration of lactated food the result has been essentially satisfactory. I shall continue to prescribe it in my practice as cases may present themselves in which an article of that kind seems to be necessary."

MARRIAGE CHIMES AT NELSON

Nakusp's First Baby—Low Water in the Columbia—Game Plentiful—Arrival of the Snow—Railway Progress.

(Nelson Tribune.

A. J. Burnyeat, from Kamloops, is now installed in the government office at Nelson as a clerk.

The Deluge Hook and Ladder company has a hose reel and several hundred feet of new hose at the depot.

"Bill" Read, assayer, prospector, and yarn spinner, is in the Huckleberry mountains, about a hundred miles north of Spokane, developing a mine for J. N. Squier.

On Wednesday evening James A. Gilker was married to Miss Lizzie Walker, the ceremony being performed at the Hotel Phair by Rev. Mr. Black of the Presbyterian church.

A gang of men has been at work for a week corduroying the wagon road near Kaslo. To make the road passably good at this season would require an expenditure of $1000 per mile.

On the last trip to Bonner's Ferry the steamer Nelson took out two carloads of ore. One carload was from the Mile Point mine at Ainsworth, the other, ore from Slocan district mines.

The Nelson Hydraulic Mining Company, limited, has been formed to acquire and work placer mines on 49 creek, nine miles southeast of Nelson. The company's prospectus will be issued next week.

The contract for clearing the Kaslo & Slocan right-of-way from South Fork to Bear Lake which was secured by W. A. Skinner has been re-let to T. Gray and A. Carney, as Skinner did not post the necessary bonds.

The frost has already cut off the water supply from a number of stores and residences. Users of water had better bury their service pipes deeper if they would be free from annoyances caused by bursting pipes.

The largest individual owner of real estate in West Kootenay is W. F. Teetzel, who is assessed for $25,000 in New Denver alone. Mr. Teetzel is the owner of lot 549, Group 1, locally known as the McGillivray addition to New Denver.

The new fire brigade formed in Kaslo will supply a long felt want. The company now consists of twenty members with John Walmsley as chief. A ball for the benefit of the brigade will be given on the night of the 24th instant.

Three Forks is having a small-sized boom, over thirty Kaslo people having left for there this week. Several Kaslo merchants have also opened business there, amongst them the Balfour Trading company and G. H. Williams, druggist.

Kaslo's mail service is getting worse. It is not the fault of the local postal officials; they at least do their best. The trouble is with the postoffice inspector at Victoria who is bringing discredit on the province at large by a policy that is nothing if not short-sighted.

John Brown, a deckhand on the steamer Columbia, was drowned in the Columbia river, at 14-mile bar, last week. He was drawing a bucket of water, and it is supposed was jerked off his feet, as the current of the river is very swift at that point. His body has not been recovered.

A washout on the Nakusp & Slocan railway a few days ago caused the engine tender to leave the track, and up to last advices all efforts to get it back again had been fruitless. The main trouble is that a supply of water cannot be kept in the boiler to allow the engine to work for any length of time.

From reports received from Ainsworth, G. B. Wright has a hidden bonanza in the Mile Point mine. Assays as high as $3500 have been obtained from ore recently extracted. A new tunnel has been started lower down than the old one, and another carload of ore shipped, this time to Great Falls, Montana.

A gang of men in charge of Charles Holden as foreman, is at work at the Kootenay rapids on the Columbia river, to the end that that river can be made navigable earlier in the spring and later in the fall. Old timers like "Dave" Ferguson, "Tom" Downs, George Spinks and "Lochie" Macdonald are in the gang.

At the last regular meeting of the city council of Kaslo a trader's license by-law was introduced. Under it ordinary spirit licenses are to be $200 per year; wholesale or wholesale and retail merchants, $25 per six months; retail merchants $5 per six months; opium selling, $200 per six months; for every performance at the variety theatre or other similar places of amusement, $10 per night.

Grange V. Holt, agent at Nelson of the Bank of British Columbia, returned on Saturday from a two weeks' trip through the mining camps to the north. While not pretending to more knowledge of practical mining than the average business man, he says he saw enough in the mines he took a look at to convince him that this country is in no great danger of a collapse. He inspected the Noble Five group, the Slocan Star, and the Mountain Chief, the ore in which stands out so that a blind man can see it. Mr. Holt reports the Kaslo wagon road and Nakusp trail in bad condition.

"Ben" Thomas, one of the best known miners and prospectors in Nelson district, returned on Saturday from East Kootenay, where he has spent six months prospecting. He covered the country on Cherry creek, the Moyea and Perry creek, and for a time ranged in the Rocky mountains to the east of Fort Steele. He reports finding a two-foot ledge, from which three picked specimens were sent to an assayer; but as no returns were received the conclusion arrived at was that the ore could not have been worth much. There was a large number of prospectors in and around Fort Steele in the summer, but no new finds of importance were reported. The North Star, on St. Mary's river, is a fine looking property, but low grade. There is also a promising looking claim on Wild Horse creek, and two that are reported showing good indications on Moyea lake.

The ore sacks having arrived, teams will begin hauling ore from the Silver King mine to Nelson on Monday. Sleighs will be used down to the switchback, where an ore shed has been built, and from there wagons will be used. The ore will go to Swansea, Wales, for treatment. It is not yet settled which route it will take from Nelson. The northern route by way of Revelstoke is now out of the question; the Bonner's Ferry route is still open, and if the freight rate given by the Great Northern is confirmed, the ore will probably go that way. Here is a chance for Mr. Corbin to get in and do a little piece of business that will advertise his new Nelson and Fort Sheppard. The track of that road will be at Nelson on Monday; a wagon road can be built to the depot in a few days; and on the first through train from Nelson could be attached a carload or two of ore from the great Silver King mine. Its arrival would be heralded by the press of that city, and a railroad, like an actress, is not adverse to a little free advertising.

On the last trip down the Lytton brought about 50 tons of freight, all for Nelson and Kaslo. About as much more will come down on the next trip, and an effort will be made to get all the Nelson and Kaslo freight through before navigation closes. The little steam barge Illecillewaet is used to transport the freight from Revelstoke down the river to a point below the "green slide." About a carload is brought at a trip.

The track of the Nelson & Fort Sheppard railway will be opposite Nelson on Saturday night and be at Daly's ranch by Tuesday night. At the later place a bridge will delay tracklaying for a day or two, but Chief Engineer Roberts expects to have the road completed to five-mile point to permit of regular trains service by December 5th at the latest. Until spring, two trains a week at least will leave Nelson and arrive at Marcus in time to connect with the regular passenger train to Spokane. The arriving and departing time will probably be 5:30 p. m. and 6 a. m. The material for the Nelson depot is at the front, and within two weeks it will be a finished building. The company will not do a commercial telegraph business over its lines this winter, but the line will be used as an alternative line if the one by way of Robson and Trail should go down, which it is sure to. A road will be constructed from Stanley street to the depot.

"Dave" Porter, foreman on the Mountain Chief Mine, and "Jack" McGuigan, one of the owners of the Noble Five group of mines, were both in Nelson this week. They report everything at their respective properties looking first rate, and that all the mines in Slocan district, as far as they knew, never looked better. A new trail has been built alongside of the mountain so that ore and supplies can be taken from and to the Mountain Chief without any heavy uphill climb. The mine itself never looked better, and as an indication that the ledge is not a small one, a 700-pound specimen has been taken out to send to the Midwinter Fair at San Francisco. Sixteen men are at work, and Mr. Porter says that 1000 tons of ore can be easily extracted and shipped in the next three months. Fifteen men are at work on the Noble Five group, where two new tunnels have been started on the Bonanza King. The first was started 125 feet below the former workings, and the other 750 feet below. One hundred tons of ore are now sacked at the mines, and it is being rawhided down the new trail to Carpenter creek. The new trail is less than two miles in length, and strikes Carpenter creek about midway between the mouth of Cody creek and Noble Five gulch. This trail will also be used by the Rico mine. One animal easily takes down half a ton at a load. Mr. McGuigan says it is their intention to ship at least 1000 tons of ore this winter. He also said the Surprise, a claim in the immediate neighborhood of the Noble Five group, has over 100 tons sacked ready for shipment. About 100 men are at work on the Washington, Bluebird, Rico, Surprise and Noble Five mines.

(Vernon News.)

Navigation is closed for the season on the Shuswap.

The heavy fall of snow of last Sunday has caused a suspension of work on road repairing for the season.

Deer are more plentiful on the bottom lands at present. Quite a number have been killed so far and are rolling in fat.

Judge Spinks has rented his ranch, which for the past few years has been worked by O'Neil & Co., to Ronald Hill, of Spallumcheen.

Mayor Cameron and O. Cameron of Enderby returned on Saturday from a very successful hunt down the lake. They camped for several days on Short's mountain, and as a result of their prowess brought in six fine bighorn heads, not to speak of several deer, which they took in as a side issue.

An auction sale of the effects of the late Mr. Lumby was held at the court house in Thursday last and was well attended. General satisfaction was expressed when it was announced that the presentation watch and gold-headed cane had been withdrawn and would probably be forwarded to the relatives of the deceased in England. Bidding was spirited and fair prices were realized for most of the articles, it being evident that more value was attached to many of the objects as souvenirs of the late esteemed government agent than for their intrinsic value.

(The Miner.)

The water on the lower Columbia has risen several feet, thus materially aiding the navigation between Northport and Robson.

The McLean brothers, who held contracts on the Nelson end of the Nelson & Fort Sheppard, are bestirring themselves for work on the road building in charge of Dan McGillivray. They will also figure on the job of freighting the piping required for the Horsefly Hydraulic property into the Cariboo country.

Several properties in the Trail Creek country are preparing to work all winter. The chief of these, Le Roi, has been shipping about thirty tons per week during the good weather. This is ore of a good grade, and the mine is reported to be in excellent condition and able to turn out a large amount of similar ore.

One of the wonders of the Slocan country will soon be a thing of the past. The Big Bowlder is being broken up, and will be sacked and sent to San Francisco. This chunk of ore, estimated to weigh over 100 tons and valued at between $17,000 and $18,000, stood solid and clean on the hillside, probably the largest and most valuable nugget in the world. The bowlder was photographed before the breaking up process began.

The water in the upper Columbia is getting lower and the pile of freight awaiting shipment down is growing larger daily. When there was plenty of water in the river the boats had little or nothing to do. Now when low water is apt to stop navigation there is a month's work ahead of the boats. It might be well for some merchants to remember the truism: "Time and tide don't wait for you when you tied for time."

Superintendent Behne of the Idaho mine, one of the principal properties of the Slocan, reports that the mine has shipped 120 tons of ore this season. Of this but one carload went to San Francisco. Returns on the shipments were of the most encouraging nature, showing an average of 150 ounces of silver and 65 per cent lead. The Idaho is now employing twelve men underground. Work will continue all winter.

Nakusp is this week rejoicing over the appearance of its first native born resident, which on Tuesday evening came to cheer the home of the town officer, G. H. Fauquier. The youngster's dad is of the opinion that the townsite company should give the newcomer a start in life by deeding over a couple of lots to him, but it remains to be seen whether the officials of the townsite company are of the same mind as the delighted dad or not.

The hauling out of the ore for a trial shipment from the Silver King will begin the first of the week. The non-arrival of ore sacks caused the delay. These are now on hand, and the first shipment of ore under the new management will soon be on its way to Swansea, Wales. It is now in order for the N. & Ft. S. to get in and bid for the handling of this ore. The track is announced to reach Nelson on Monday or Tuesday, and it would be quite an all round "ad" if the first train going out should carry a shipment of Nelson ore.

In view of the probability of the present uncertainty with respect to the value of silver continuing for some time, the people of Revelstoke have great hopes that next spring operations will be commenced on the gold reefs in the Big Bend country. One of the chief drawbacks which have been in the way of this district's advancement has been the difficulty of getting supplies into it, but an inkling has been given of the government's alleged intention of spending a liberal amount of money to obviate this difficulty, and consequently hopes for the Big Bend run somewhat high in Revelstoke. With proper working it is said that many of the placer grounds in that district could be made to pay handsomely.

The Miner received a call during the week from D. P. Porter, the well known mining man, at present superintendent of the Mountain Chief mine in the Slocan. In answer to some questions as to the conditions of affairs up his way, he expressed himself as well satisfied with the general probabilities.

"There is," he said, "no reason to think but that the Slocan country is on as solid a basis as any mining camp in America. The majority of the properties on which any amount of development work has been done have in almost every case turned out well.

"You know, of course, that a number of good shipments have been made lately from the principal mines up our way, but I think that most people will be surprised to see the shipments that will be made as soon as the roads get in good condition for sleighing. There must be many hundreds of tons of ore piled up on the various dumps, waiting for the time when the "rawhide" can get in its work.

"The Mountain Chief mine is looking better than ever before, and I know of no reason why this should not become one of the most valuable mines in the Slocan. The ore is not only high grade, ranging from hundreds to thousands of ounces, but there is plenty of it. A short time ago we got out a chunk of ore that was all seven men could lift after it was fixed up in a sling. This specimen will weigh from 700 to 900 pounds and will be sent down to the midwinter fair at San Francisco. We have twelve men at work now, and expect to increase the force soon. In case it was deemed advisable there would be no difficulty in turning out seven or eight hundred tons of ore from the Chief this winter.

"The Noble Five group is working about the same force of men as the Mountain Chief. Part of these are engaged in running in two new tunnels on the Bonanza. I have heard that this property will come near the 1,000 tons mark by next spring.

"The Slocan Star is now in splendid shape for working. There are three tunnels now in on this lead, and the various levels have been connected, so that a large force of men can be put at taking out ore at any time. The Star lead, I am told, is an unusually strong one, ranging from four to eight feet of ore. This is of the usual high grade found all through the Slocan.

"Several hundred men will be kept busy taking out and handling ore in the Slocan this winter. The result should and no doubt will be satisfactory, in face of the present condition of the metal market."

GALLANT IDA LEWIS.

America's Grace Darling, the Brave Woman Who Keeps the Lime Rock Light

Her Boat, "The Rescue" Exhibited at the World's Fair---The Heroine Who Has Saved 18 Lives, Tells How Her Own Life Was Saved---Congress Gives Her a Gold Medal.

Newport, R.I. Nov. 24.—America's Grace Darling, the heroine of 18 life-saving exploits, the woman for whom the American congress has cast a gold medal of the first class, the first of the kind ever given a woman, keeps the Lime rock lighthouse.

It was when the Russian warships were lying at peaceful anchor in Newport's beautiful habor that a small company from the Hotel Aquidneck went out in a sail boat to pay a visit to this brave woman, whose lifeboat, the Rescue, has been one of the much talked of exhibits at the World's Fair. The story told by Miss Lewis of how her own life was saved amply repaid the visitors for their journey.

Lime rock lighthouse, the home of this world-famous heroine, is within the harbor and a short sail from the New York yacht club's house. At high tide an ordinary cat rigged sail boat cannot land at Lime rock, and a row boat must be used, from which a landing is effected by climbing up the face of a perpendicular rock upon a ladder lashed with fetters of iron to the stone.

At low tide the row boat is guided towards a pebbly beach through the sword grass that cuts against its sides like slashing martial blades.

THE HOME OF IDA LEWIS, LIME ROCK LIGHT, NEWPORT, R I.

The lighthouse—this saving station of wrecked mariners—is the blessed symbol of peace on earth and sea, saying goodwill to men. The fair woman to whom the visitors listened told a true narrative for every other brave and good woman in the country—a narrative for every woman in the country to heed and profit by.

Ida Lewis looks to be in the thirties as to age, with a highly nervous temperament, slight figure, bright eyes, with a dash of color in her face.

"It is 35 years since we came to Lime rock, six in family, and now there are but two of us left, my brother Rudolph, who helped you up the rocks, and myself," said she. "My father was a cripple for seventeen years, in which time he never cut a mouthful of food for himself; my mother died ten years ago of cancer, and my sister six years ago of consumption.

"I have never been well in my life until now. My trouble was in my chest and lungs, and I have always had a cough from a child. What has done me more good than anything else in the world is Paine's celery compound.

"I have always been miserable in summer, and I believe I should have died this season of I had not taken Paine's celery compound. I began with it last February, and this summer I have been splendid," and her eyes flashed as she warmed to her subject. "And I am delighted to tell it," she continued, "for it is the truth. I have had so many doctors and so many doctors' prescriptions that I had lost faith in them, and I have tried so many patent meditines that I dreaded the summer. But I read about Paine's celery compound, and went to see the gentlemen who testified, and they were loud in its praise. My brother Rudolph said that if had better not try it, as I would be disappointed again, and then I would feel worse than ever, but I went ahead; it seemed that the Lord directed me, and I received benefit from the very first bottle.

"O, you should have seen me last summer. I was short of breath, easily tired out, and had a cough and night sweats, and my doctor told me I had heart trouble. I was so thin, and I was wearing black, and my friends said I looked like a ghost. Now I am excellent, and feel proud to tell it and give the credit to Paine's celery compound. I have faith in it because there is nothing like it. I know so many people that have been helped. I am so much improved that my friends do not know me this summer. I have taken eight bottles since February, and the longer I take it the better I get. I have to live economically, and I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and even the painting of the woodwork outside. I enjoy doing it now, but I believe I should be dead if I had not taken Paine's celery compound."

Besides the gold medal presented to her by the United States of America, a silver medal was presented by the Humane Society of Massachusetts: "To Ida Lewis, the heroine of Lime rock, for the many heroic and successful efforts in saving human lives." Another, also of silver, was presented by the Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York: "To Miss Ida Lewis, as a testimonial of her skill, courage and humanity in rescuing two men in the harbor of Newport, R.I., during a severe storm."

Not only on these several special occasions, however, has Miss Lewis shown the courage and fortitude that have made her famous, but also in the faithfulness and regularity with which her daily round of duties have been performed, for they are not few. No lighthouse on the coast is kept better than hers, and not one has a better record.

"People think, when they come and find things in perfect order, that there is nothing to do here," she said. "But they do not know how early we start in the morning and how many little things there are to be done. The lamps have to be cleaned every day, the lenses kept clean, and the brasses polished, to say nothing of keeping the house in order."

Not alone are the "brasses polished" on the light, but the shining copper pump in the kitchen and the row of brass candlesticks on the mantel behind the stove all testify to the success and industry of the thrifty champion of life and strength.

Ida Lewis is called the bravest woman in America. But there are many brave women who have suffered as she has done, who are nearly broken down, who need to-day a true food for brain and nerves, and whom Paine's celery compound will make well again. Thousands of women have been saved by this wonderful remedy.

PABST MILWAUKEE BEER WINS.

The PABST BREWING CO., has been awarded the highest points of merit on each article they manufacture, at the World's Columbian Exposition. Each separate beer has defeated all similar beers of its respective class. Pabst Hofbrau scored higher than the Royal Hofbrau of Munich, and the "Best" Tonic scored the one hundred points of perfection, an altitude of merit supreme and unequalled. This gives to Pabst Milwaukee,

THE LABOR CONFERENCE.

Forty Labor Union Delegates in the City to Meet the Government.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE DISCUSSION,

The Labor Bureau and Other Labor Legislation the Questions to be Talked Over—Trying to Come to an Understanding.

This evening delegates from the different labor organizations of the province will wait on the government at the Board of Trade rooms to confer in reference to the bureau of labor and statistics and the board of arbitration and conciliation. Since the act organising these institutions has been in force little headway could be made on account of misunderstandings between the workingmen and the department having control of the bureau. It is to bring about an understanding that the conference was called by the government, who are bearing the expenses of the delegates.

The mainland delegates arrived in the city last evening and the Nanaimo delegates came down on the noon train. There will be 38 delegates at the conference. They are:

Victoria—Wm. Heatherbell, Victoria Trades and Labor Council; Geo. White, Bricklayers' and Stonemasons' union; A. D. Dutton, building laborers; Wm. McKay, stone cutters; Samuel Blanchard, plasterers; J. L. Smith, cigarmakers; Thos. Howell, tailors; J. B. Colvin, shipwrights; Geo. K. Gilbert, sheet iron and cornice makers; James Mallett, iron moulders; A. Campbell, typographical union; S. H. Shanks, carpenters; H. Biven, painters and decorators.

Vancouver—Geo. Gagen, Trades and Labor Council; W. Towler, A. S. of C. and J.; C. McDonald, stevedores and Knights of Labor; W. J. Lundy, tailors; D. Holmerhood, Mainland B. S. association; J. K. Gray, painters; J. Ker, B. of C. and J.; A. Porter, typographical union; R. Cosgrove, building laborers, and J. Rumble stone cutters.

Nanaimo—T. Keith, Trades and Labor Council; T. Boyce, M. and M. L. union No. 1; W. Jones, sailors' union; R. Gillespie, coal trimmers; T. Brown, E. P. A.; L. Jones, M. and M. L. A. Northfield No. 4; F. Hampson, M. and M. L. A., East Wellington; J. Horrobin, K. of L. A., Northfield, No. 2; W. Neive, K. of L. A., Nanaimo; J. Dale, carpenters' union.

New Westminster—P. R. Peele, printers; P. L. Mitchell, millmen; Geo. Hargreaves, painters; and J. C. Smith, bricklayers and stone masons.

The question of reorganizing the provincial trade and labor council is being discussed during the visit of the delegates to the city, and it is probable some action will be taken before their departure. The delegates all seem to be in favor of reorganizing the congress. Other matters will also be considered by the delegates before they leave for home.

A meeting was held this afternoon to arrange for the conference to be held this evening.

A MADMAN'S SUICIDE.

An Old Threat Carried Out—South Westminster Coal.

New Westminster, Nov. 25.—Frank Fiedler, aged 40, of Nanaimo, hanged himself at the asylum early this morning, using the sheet from his bed. He was admitted last May and often threatened to take his life.

Snow fell several hours to-day, but melted as soon as it touched the ground.

Rev. Dr. Reid is confined to bed by illness.

Another prospect for coal at South Westminster is being made by an English engineer.

Another death occurred to-day from diphtheria.

INFESTED WITH ROBBERS.

Capture of a Gang of Thieves—Killed While Hunting.

Nanaimo, Nov. 25.—Sergeant Gibbs has arrested a gang of thieves who have been infesting the city for the past week. The various robberies have been carried on almost openly, and the plunder has in many instances been easily disposed of. One of the thieves says he disposed of twelve pairs of trousers to a storekeeper, but so far he has refused to give the name of the purchaser. Gibbs thinks there are others of the gang not yet captured.

A coroner's inquest was held yesterday to inquire into the death of T. Hirst. The evidence went to show that deceased had been on one of his drunken sprees and had fallen down in the hallway of the Wilson hotel. One of the barmen placed him in a sitting position, and his head sank forward and caused strangulation. The jury found deceased died through strangulation, caused by over indulgence in intoxicating liquor.

The poultry exhibition to be held shortly in Nanaimo promises well. The prizes are numerous and well worth winning, especially the $50 challenge cup which will be presented by the New Vancouver Coal Co. The E. & N. railway and the Union Steamship company will be asked to assist by carrying all exhibits free of cost, and also to issue excursion tickets.

News was received here last night from Englishman's river that J. Kinnaird, a carpenter, was on Friday accidentally shot while tracking a bear in company with J. Plummer and one Mills. Coroner Walkem left for Englishman's river early this morning to hold an inquest.

Untrue Reports.

A great many sensational reports have been going the rounds of United States papers in reference to the British Columbia Indians. A dispatch recently sent to California from Vancouver stated that the Indians were on the warpath on account of the recent murder trials at New Westminster. Two Indians who killed a white man were sentenced to be hanged while a white man who killed an Indian was sentenced to twelve years. On this account, the dispatch said, the Indians were up in arms. Of course there is no truth whatever in the report. The Indians went home quietly and settled down to the old routine. Another dispatch from Quebec said the Indians were starving. This was also untrue. As a matter of fact, the Indians are better off this year than they have been for many seasons. "The only trouble with the Indians," said Superintendent Vowell, "is that they have too much money. Instead of being satisfied with their usual food, they now want canned meats and other delicacies, for which they carelessly spend their money."

THE CUE.

IVES AND SCHAEFER.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Frank C. Ives clinched the championship business in the billiard line to-night at Central Music hall. He broke the high run record of 343, made by Schaefer on Tuesday night, scoring in a single play 456 points. He also broke all public records for average, scoring 47 1-7 on the night's play of 400 points. The aggregate score stands 3,200 for Ives and 2,695 for Schaefer, a difference of 505 points to be made up in the closing game to-morrow night. It was a case of pupil beating his master. The "wizard" invented the anchor nurse, taught it to Ives, who coolly stepped in and beat Schaefer at his own game. The last record-breaking run was made in the sixteenth innings, when Ives got warmed. The balls were safely anchored on the lower end rail, and Ives kept them there until he had piled up 456 on his score. At 444 the balls froze, but a clever masse put him out of his difficulty. The anchor remained as secure at 456 but Ives failed to hit the first ball. He was going ahead, however, when Schaefer, who had been standing all the while waiting for the end, started forward and said with a smile, "Sit down, you did not hit the first ball." Ives made a bluff at the objection, but took a rest. Following is the score:

Schaefer, 2,228; total for the night, 467; grand total, 2,695; grand average, 28 48-52.

Ives, 2,400; total for the night, 800; grand total, 3,200; grand average, 30 40-52.
